NUMBER 49.

CAMPAIGN START- ED TO BOOST BUILDING

Local Firms Join National Housing Movement Intensive Construction Planned Under Slogan "Build With The Birds."

A lively activity this spring in building in Lancaster is indicated by the interest which is being taken locally in a movement for more and better houses, sponsored by a number of local business men. For several years building has been below normal, but the low price to which most building material has dropped and the abundance of labor available for construction purposes, makes it probable that with the added stimulus of this "Build with the Birds" campaign, which is now being started, there will be a building boom such as this community has not experienced in years.

The following firms are cooperating this week in the movement to "build with the birds" as their advertisement will show on another page in this issue: Bastin Lumber Company, E. C. Gaines, Goodloe and Walker Brothers, Storms Drug Store, Vanhook and Wood, Hudson and Farnau and C. D. McCarthy.

"It is really to the interest of the entire community," explains H. D. Bastin, of the Bastin Lumber Company, one of the active promoters of this movement, "that as many new houses be built this spring as are needed and that they be as attractive and well designed as it is possible to make them. There is nothing which so marks a city as a desirable place to live and rear a family as to be known as a city of attractive homes."

"A healthy revival of building at this time would aid materially to the prosperity of almost every line of business in this city. Whenever people build homes they immediately begin to need all the other things that go with it, and to make up the comforts of home life, and there is scarcely a commercial enterprise in the community that is not called in to service."

"Our campaign here in Lancaster is simply a part of a very general movement all over the country to promote building with a view to relieving the house shortage, which has seriously affected living conditions in many localities. Many people who have been expecting to build and were financially able to do so have been holding off until prices of material and labor became more reasonable. Men who are familiar with conditions believe that most of the adjustments have been completed and that prices have reached a stage where there can be no object in longer delaying."

"The local dealers in building and home furnishing materials are lending their hearty support to this campaign and will be glad to assist with suggestions or advice with anyone who is considering building this spring. We have taken "Build with the Birds" as the slogan and are urging that wherever possible people make their plans early for their building or repairing this spring."

Don't Forget The Big Hog Sale Saturday

The above picture is a fairly good likeness of some of the sixty head of Hampshire hogs that will be sold by Haselden and Aldridge next Saturday afternoon at their Crescent Hill stock farm on the Stanford road. This is the second annual sale of this firm, the one held a year ago, being quite successful and the purchasers

Eloquent Speakers Will Plead For The Red Cross March 19th. And 26th.

Preparations for the coming Red Cross Roll Call to be held from March 24th. to March 31st., inclusive are rapidly nearing completion. Speakers will address the pupils of the various schools in the county during the coming week in the interest of the Red Cross. Besides these meetings there will be a Union meeting of the churches in Lancaster at the Christian Church, Sunday evening, March 19th., at which Dr. S. E. Brewster, a noted speaker, will address the congregation on the health of the community and on the work of the Red Cross. A large audience should hear this gifted man as his address will be both interesting and instructive.

Sunday evening, March 26th., at 7:30 P. M., at the Presbyterian church another union meeting of all the churches in Lancaster will be held and for this meeting one of the most eloquent speakers of the State will deliver an address on the Ex-service men and the Red Cross. Every ex-service man in the county should be present to hear this service man talk to them. Mr. W. L. Kilpatrick, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., will interest and enthrall all attending this service.

There will be no soliciting of funds at the union meetings.

Next Monday representatives of the American Red Cross will arrive in Lancaster and make their headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, while compiling a complete list of all ex-service men in the county who are entitled to compensation by reason of being disabled. This is a good work and will help many a soldier who is in need and who is unable to earn his living. The Liaison Section of the American Red Cross has already helped many disabled soldiers.

Big Task For Board Of Supervisors

The County Board of Supervisors began their duties last Monday morning in the office of tax commissioner, A. T. Scott and it looks like a month of good hard work they will have to do in adjusting the $2,200,000 raise by the State Tax Commission at Frankfort. The board consists of Messrs. James Sutton, William Simpson, Dr. B. H. Montgomery and W. B. Moss, all prominent citizens of the county and thoroughly capable of performing the important duties assigned them. The members were sworn in by County Judge G. M. Treadway and now face the onerous task of adding over two hundred million dollars to the assessment in compliance with the State Tax Commission.

Scholarship In Centre

The will of Mrs. W. K. Argo, late superintendent of the Colorado State School for the Deaf and Blind, which was held for probate recently, provides for a scholarship of $5,000 for Centre College, and also for a scholarship of the same amount for Colorado College. The estate is valued at $50,000. Mrs. Argo is the last of the family, her two sons and husband predeceasing her about a year ago. The Argo family were residents of Paint Lick before going to Colorado to reside. Miss Allie Arnold, of this city, has been an instructor in this school for three years or more.

CIRCUIT COURT OPENS Convened Last Monday For Three Weeks Term

The March term of the Garrard Circuit Court convened here last Monday morning, with Judge Charles A. Hardin on the bench. The court was promptly called to order by sheriff James Robinson, this being his first official duty at a circuit court term. The grand jury was then called and not a single one of the twelve asked to be excused, for which the court thanked them. The instructions then followed which consumed only a short time.

The selection of the petit jury consumed only a few minutes. The commonwealth docket was then called and several cases quickly disposed of. Among them being the case of Robert Lunsford charged with the murder of Brown Jasper about one year ago, near Bryantville. This case was given the jury after a few hours and a verdict returned in a few minutes of not guilty. Court was adjourned until Friday morning.

The following constitute the juries:

Grand Jury
G. A. Bowling, R. L. Burton, J. D. Rankin, Abe Burton, Milton Ward, Roy Broadus, H. C. Ruble, G. B. Robinson, J. B. Woods, Sam Hardin, J. J. Sebastian and Nick Sanders. G. B. Robinson was named for foreman.

Petit Jury
S. M. Turner, Hugh Kurtz, A. B. Sadler, Price Bourne, M. D. Kennedy, Millard Ham, R. C. Clark, Joe Kelley, H. B. Curtis, G. T. Ballard, Jr., C. M. Dean, John T. Henry, Forest Curtis, G. M. Dabon, R. C. Boan, Ben Naylor, J. T. Thompson, Hayden Leavell, Walter Arnold, John Tribble, J. W. Sweeney, Eli Cox, W. B. Lackey and Sam Sutton.

Twenty Years Service

Twenty years ago tomorrow, Saint Patrick's day, the Central Record's present foreman and head compositor, Mr. L. N. Miller, started his work as a very small "devil" in this office and has continued that service without much as two weeks interruption, up to the present time. His untiring energy, faithfulness, and application to business, puts him today as the foremost compositor in the State, barring none.

Mr. Miller we congratulate you upon this splendid service and we trust our future business relations may be as pleasant as it has always been in the past.

Bites Off Finger

Mr. Ben Swope had the misfortune of losing one of his valuable fingers last week, while attempting to "ring" one of his sows, which had developed an unusual fondness for some of his fine hens.

Just as he attempted to fasten the ring in the hog's snout, she made a successful dash for one of the digits of his hand, biting it completely off near the second joint. The finger was not recovered for it went down the esophagus of the enraged animal.

Jewish War Relief

Mr. A. D. Joseph has accepted the chairmanship of Garrard county for the relief of the starving Jews of Europe. While Mr. Joseph will not make an active campaign for this fund, but will accept gladly any contributions from his friends for this worthy work. While there are a few Jews in Garrard county, we feel that there are many non-Jews who will gladly contribute to this cause. Leave your contributions at Joseph's.

Business Change

Mr. J. A. Lee, of this city has just closed a deal whereby he becomes owner and proprietor of the barber shop, now owned by Arthur Duncan. The change will be made April 1st. The Duncan shop is one of the oldest in the city and as Mr. Lee has had several years experience as a barber we predict that he will share a good portion of the local patronage of the city as well as throughout the county.

A Slight Error

We were in error in our last issue in stating that $559.11 was due sheep owners, when we should have stated that this sum was left over from last year after all claims had been paid and was placed to the school fund.

Great Mass Meeting Ex-Service Men Of The County Call For Special Meeting Monday Night, March 20th, 1922.

The Record has just completed printing several hundred letters that the Post Commander of the local Post of the American Legion is mailing to all the ex-service men of the county, calling them in mass meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms Monday evening at 7:15 P. M. to hear Mr. F. E. Denney, of the U. S. Veterans Bureau of Lexington, explain the many things that the service men of the county are entitled to.

The local Post is doing a great work and they need the assistance of every ex-service man and should be honored by having a big crowd at their meeting Monday evening at 7:15 P. M., March 20th, 1922, at the Commercial Club rooms.

"Red" Roberts May Train For Wrestling

(Lexington Leader.)

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, wants "Red" Roberts, the Centre College All-American gridiron warrior, to take up wrestling. Lewis Saturday night invited the sorrel-topped youth to spend the summer with him in California and take his first lessons under him. The champion promised "Red" that he would not book him for any matches until he had completed his college work at Centre. "Roberts has the ideal build for a wrestler. The training he would get this summer would condition him for his work on the gridiron next fall," declared the champion of the mat.

Red said that he had not given Lewis a definite answer but was seriously considering taking up his proposition. Red reduced weight last summer by firing a freight engine on the Southern Railway and was in great shape when Charlie Moran called out his Colonels in September. He had planned to return to his stoking job this summer but the offer by Lewis may bring about a change of plans.

Dancing Earned A Church

An old negro sings and dances on the platform of a small station in Oklahoma when each train pulls in. He dances for the coins which the tourists throw to him. It is said this man has met every train coming in to the town for the past nineteen years. Out of his savings he has built a church, of which he is the pastor, known as the Straight Gate Church. He preaches there morning and evening on Sunday, besides holding street meetings Sunday afternoons, and dances week days to keep things going.

The Cat Came Home

Mr. H. M. Scott, of Goshen, presented his father-in-law, Mr. Jasper Cox with a beautiful young cat. It was carried in a sack to the home of Mr. Cox a distance of ten miles. Everything went well for two days, when the domesticated quadruped, took "french leave" and returned to the home of its former owner, unhampered, unsacked and unforgiven.

Red Cross Work

The work of the Red Cross is constantly showing up the fruit that they are bearing in our schools, communities and other places. We want the Red Cross to be with us to help care for the school children and make Garrard the most healthful county in the State.

Cut Over Eye

Jack, the bright little three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Conn, fell last Friday evening and cut a long gash over his left eye. A few whiffs of chloroform and three stitches were required to repair the injury. He's alright now and is none the worse for his experience.

Houn' Dogs High

Miss Hazel Davis, daughter of Raymond Davis of this county, is developing into quite a saleslady, when it comes to selling hound dogs. She has just closed a deal with C. A. Mount, of Galipolis, O., for her famous young dog, Jessie, which she raised from a pup, for $150.00. Knowing ones tell us the dog was as good as ever trained in the county.

Chamber Of Commerce Holds Interesting Meeting

The Chamber of Commerce held their weekly meeting at the club rooms over the Puritan last Friday evening and was well attended. Matters of great importance was brought before the body and same was disposed of. One thing that the secretary called attention of the Directors to was the many pledge cards that any number of the members signed and have up to the present date failed to pay their dues.

The Record has always taken a leading part in upbuilding Lancaster, the center of the Blue Grass and we know that the Commercial Club has helped her and her many citizens a great deal, now the question comes that so many of the members who signed the pledge card have failed to pay their dues. This is we hope an oversight on the part of the members as the signing of this pledge card is an obligation that is just as morally binding as any other paper that would be legally binding and it behooves those who have signed the pledge cards to get busy and call on the Directors of the local Chamber of Commerce and pay same, as they were counting on YOU when you signed the pledge card.

A call meeting will be held in the near future to take the proper steps relative to this matter if you who owe your pledges do not pay same, so we are informed by one of the active members.

Jim Hatcher Dies

After several months of declining health, James Hatcher, died at the Lexington Sanatorium last Monday night of pneumonia. His body was brought to his late home Tuesday afternoon from which place short burial services will be held this afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Revs. E. B. Bourland and W. E. Rix. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Jim Hatcher was forty years old at the time of his death and had lived in Lancaster most of his life. Fewer young men had more friends than he. Kind, jovial, affable, congenial, accomodating, he made friends with all whom he met.

For many years he drove the Lancaster and Danville stage line, succeeding his father, who died suddenly while on one of these trips, about fifteen years ago. He is survived by his widow and one son, Henry Thomas, whom the sympathy of the community go out to in this heavy loss of an affectionate husband and indulgent father. Two sisters, Mrs. Rice and Mrs. Walter Milam, both of Atlanta, and one brother, George Hatcher, of this city, also survive.

Important Changes In Football Rules

Local football fans will be interested to learn that the intercollegiate Football Rules Committee which is now in session in New York City, has abolished the free trial for goal after touch-down. By the new rule, the side scoring a touch-down will be given the ball on the five-yard line where they must carry the ball over the line again to receive credit for the one point that was formerly given the eleven which has scored to carry ball over again. This change was recommended by the Association of American Football Coaches in their meeting last December. Football experts all over the country have advocated this change for many years.

The rule governing shift plays was changed so as to reduce the freak shifts employed by some western colleges. These plays have puzzled many teams of late and really are not football.

The rules also have been so changed that the team winning the toss selects the goal it is to defend while the opposing team has its choice of either kicking or receiving.

By the new rules in the case of darkness the fourth or both periods of the second half may be shortened by the referee with the consent of both captains. Also a player may return to the game in the same half in which he was removed. Now he does not have to return at the beginning of a period. Any player who leaves the line of scrimmage must be five yards in the rear of the line when the ball is snapped. The official also must blow his whistle when he is certain that the ball has crossed the line or a forward pass has been completed behind the line. Walter Camp was again elected secretary and rules editor.

Winter is on its last legs and they are beginning to wobble.

Presbyterian Church Notes

Next Sunday afternoon, March 19th., is the date of the annual Every Member Canvass for the local support and the benevolences of your church. At a foot ball game one has a choice of seats of different cost. In the church we are given the opportunity to put on the plate what we please. But it is unbusiness-like for an organization to employ a man to preach and a lunitor to dust without having an assured income. We, therefore, operate on a business-like budget plan with the minimum of all our needs closely estimated. Pledges are asked from members and friends upon a weekly basis, according to their ability. Multitudes who give a definite percentage of their income to the church recommend strongly the dedication of at least a tenth.

"I believe you ought to see these," said a pastor to a bank president. He laid on the desk the weekly offering envelopes of the bank president and of a wash woman. Each contained 50cts. The man of large income fingered the envelopes and grew red. He made a new pledge on the spot; proportioned to his income. Why not make your church contribution on a proportioned basis?

A recent visitor at the Church of the Divine Salvador, El Paso, Texas, found in the collection an envelope with three silver dollars. This he learned is the regular weekly offering of the richest man in the congregation, a Mexican garage mechanic earning $30 a week. His skin is swarthy. He speaks little English. But he gives one-tenth of his income to the church. Do you give to the Lord PROPORTIONATELY? Be definite with yourself.

Your doorbell will ring Sunday afternoon. A visitor representing this church and its world-wide enterprise will offer you an opportunity to share financial support for the ensuing year. Pledge intelligently. Pray that you may be honest with God. Give proportionately. The Presbyterian church in all its long history has never gone backward.

Be sure to stay at home Sunday afternoon, but be sure first to come to church at 11 o'clock.

Baptist Church News

The Sunday School attendance was the largest in many months, 110 last Sunday. Practically all the cars entered in the auto race have left the Western coast on their trip to New York. The Baraca Class are pushing the Overland to the limit with no punctures or other disasters encountered so far. Three other cars are almost abreast and crowding the Overland pretty close. Next Sunday we will publish their names. Watch this space for returns from the race, or better still, if you are not enrolled as a scholar in any Sunday School at present, you had better enroll with us and help some class win this race. Come next Sunday.

It was voted to hold our next monthly business meeting the first Wednesday night in April, at our meeting last Sunday. As this will be our last regular meeting before the close of the books for this Convention year, it was requested that a report be made from each department of the church, and that all Campaign pledges be gathered in by that time or as soon after as possible. A social hour and luncheon will precede the business meeting at that time, and it is hoped that all church members will make their plans to be present. Full announcement will be made later.

The Young People's Societies are doing good work and had helpful programs last Sunday evening. The Juniors meet at 6:00 P. M. and the Seniors at 6:45.

Last Sunday was a day of blessing in all our services, with a large attendance morning and evening. It was a pleasure to greet some members from a distance who were present at the morning service. An earnest invitation is extended to all to meet with us next Sunday.

Sermon topics: Morning—"Egyptian Theology." Evening—"Can the Dead Communicate with the Living?" The March Week of Prayer was observed by the W. M. U. last week. An interesting and helpful program was rendered each afternoon, the W. M. S. leading on Sunday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday; the Y. W. A's, Monday and Tuesday; and the G. A's, Wednesday. The attendance was fairly good.

March came in as usual, but the lion forgot to roar.

Half Of Hatching Eggs Turn Out To Be Blanks

Nearly One-Half Of All Chicks That
Do Hatch Die In Infancy, Specialists Point Out And Tell Why

Kentucky farmers annually lose more than 24 million eggs and 12 million chicks through their efforts to rear chickens to maintain the ten million hens on farms of the State, according to poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. These figures mean that one-half of all the eggs incubated fail to hatch and nearly one-half of all the chicks hatched die before reaching market size or maturity, the specialists say.

The main causes which they outline for their loss during incubation and the first few weeks of brooding are due to the management of the poultry used as breeders, the care of eggs previous to and during incubation, and the operation of the incubator. The cost of Kentucky chicks could be reduced more than $500,000 each year by increasing the hatch from 50 to 75 chicks each 100 eggs set, it is said.

"The first step toward more and better chicks is to produce good quality eggs," J. H. Martin, in charge of the college poultry work, said. "Eggs suitable for producing healthy, vigorous chicks must be fertile, fresh in quality, normal in size, shape and shell texture and produced by healthy vigorous stock. They should be kept in a clean, well ventilated room having a temperature of about 50 degrees. Ten days is the longest period eggs should be held before being placed in machines and the shorter the time they are held the better will be the hatch.

"While the hen is a good incubator of eggs, she is being replaced rapidly by the hot air, hot water or electric machines, all of which give good results under proper management. The type of machine to buy is the one that is durable, built of good materials, well insulated from the outside temperature and easily cleaned. It also should have a heating device that is capable of supplying sufficient heat, and a heat control that is accurate. Ample provision for ventilating the egg chamber is important. Operation of the machine is best done according to the manufacturer's directions."

Flowers While We Live

Give us flowers while we live,
Don't wait until we're dead,
And then bring beautiful bouquets
To place on our coffin lid.

We should plant flower seeds in our heart,
Seeds of love, and let them grow;
Then pick from them the choicest flowers.
And send them to our friends we know.

The flowers that we like best
Will never fade away;
But scatter rays of sun-light
Through memories sweetest day.

All the praise you have for us,
Let us have them while we may;
Don't keep them back to murmur low Around our forms of clay.

Our ears then will be dull of hearing;
Our hearts be silent too;
Our lives once filled with dark disappointments
Might have been brightened, then, by you.

WETTEST STATE

Kentucky Holds Two-Thirds Of All Whisky In United States

Kentucky is the wettest state in the country. Two-thirds of all whisky in the United States is stored in Kentucky. Three states, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Kentucky, now hold 95 per cent of all the visible supply of real whisky in the United States.

This was shown this week by a survey made by enforcement authorities, preliminary to concentrating the remaining liquor stocks into few warehouses, to reduce and protect the dwindling liquor supplies against robbers.

Commissioner Haynes said that within a short period his officers will have reduced the 300 warehouses to 100. Most of the bonded warehouses are in Kentucky.

The figures revealed that of the 38,000,000 gallons of whisky which Haynes said must run the country for ten years, about 25,000,000 gallons are stored in Kentucky.

Illinois has nearly 2,000,000 gallons; Ohio about 1,500,000 gallons.

Commissioner Haynes said the concentration will save the Government $100,000. Forces of guards, gaugers and inspectors will be greatly reduced.

More Home Grown Feeds

PLAN OF LARUE FARMERS

In line with their plans to increase the amount of protein feeds grown on farms of Larue County, members of the farmers' organization, two dairy associations and interested farmers will cooperate with County Agent J. W. Jones and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington in carrying on a campaign for 1,000 acres of soybeans and cowpeas to be grown for hay, according to a report. Because of the shortage of home grown feeds, many dairymen in this section of the State have been buying commercial dairy feed, cottonseed meal and bran to keep up the butterfat production of their cows.

OPAL

By JACK LAWTON

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"I wish," said Terry glancing smilingly down his cigar, "that you could meet Opal and give her a lesson."

"If she is the champion little heart-breaker that you describe," his friend replied, "I'm afraid I'd be taking the lesson instead of giving it. I'm not invulnerable, Terry."

"Well, you're at least a lady killer," Terry retorted. "All the fellows in college conceded that, and Opal is altogether too indifferent to the pain she inflicts. It is evident that I have been one of her victims—and am eager for retaliation, which, I myself, cannot give. The girl laughs at my sufferings, for there is no denying that I still care. Great guns! but she did lead me a merry dance—and I enjoyed it; it only ended too briefly."

Terry sighed. "Some jolt!" he exclaimed, "when that new Travers fellow came along."

"Pretty girl?" asked the friend Thomas Campbell.

"Pretty?" Terry considered. "Well, I don't know. Of course as howlingly in love as I am, I ought to rave over her beauty."

"Willing to believe all you say," Thomas agreed doubtfully, "and I'll turn on my fascination. Lead me to the young lady."

Terry hesitated. "It's rash I am," he said forlornly. "But my case sure can't be worse, so go in and win. But when you have won—I beg of you—snub the girl hard. Don't yield like the rest of us."

It was Terry's married sister who did finally bring about the meeting which ended unexpectedly for all. She was giving a party in her suburban home, and Terry and Thomas, typical fellows and others were guests. Thomas had watched expectantly the dancing throng, where Terry, the broken-hearted, was also disporting cheerfully. In turn, Thomas decided that first this pretty girl, and then that, must be the dangerous Opal; at last in despair he went to his hostess.

"Terry wanted me to meet Miss Opal Reid," he said, "but he's too busy enjoying himself to present me. Will you tell where I may find her?"

Mrs. Moore smiled. "Of course you would want to meet her," she said, "they all do. Well, I'll tell you a romantic way; she is out in the lantern-lit garden, away back under the arbor tree. You may tell her that I sent you with a wrap, if you choose."

"Here," finished Mrs. Moore, "is the wrap." She slipped a scarf from her shoulders.

The silent garden was a fairyland bower. Thomas stepped lightly across grass and into the arbor. A white-clad figure awaited him. He presented the scarf with his explanation, and the little blue-eyed girl allowed him to drape it about her shoulders. Then she sat down on the circular bench, and Thomas sat down, too.

Miss Reid did respond in friendly conversation. But she was, as Terry had said, unusual.

He found himself watching for the fleeting smile that showed a fetching laughing dimple; a dimple which in contrast to the gravity of the shy blue eyes, she certainly was all unconscious of her attractiveness—this sweet little Miss Reid.

But Thomas forgot the party. For got that he was expected to take Miss Sturtevant in to supper—forgot indeed that such an institution as refreshment existed; he wanted only to tell the interested young woman at his side, of all past and present experiences which concerned himself. The motor trip through the mountains, the business deal which he had landed skillfully, the lonely fishing cabin where he thought out things and wrote in a shabby diary, he promised eagerly that he would show her the diary.

The hours were slipping, but Thomas was not tired—neither was his listener.

"I must see you tomorrow," he insisted at parting, and Miss Reid agreed that he must.

Thomas drew up suddenly on his homeward walk. He recollected that he had not gone into Mrs. Moore's home to make his adieux. He reflected that Terry had exacted of him that Opal Reid was to be snubbed hard.

Thomas swung about and retraced his steps. The little white figure was still in the arbor. Miss Reid jumped up at his approach.

"I didn't feel like going back to the rest of them—after you," she explained confusedly.

"I love you," he said recklessly, "I admit it. It was love at first sight, and I shall never care about anything else in the world again, but yourself. And if you are going to treat me as you have your other victims, Opal Reid, then I'd better say good-by right here—and now."

The white figure came close to him, the gray eyes were reproachful, but the dimple danced.

"Why Tom, the conqueror!" laughed Nancy Reid. "I do believe that you've been taking me for my flirtatious sister. You—were the very first victim I ever had in my life."

Lightweight Citizen.

"Just to look at Mr. Pimpfleh, you'd think the world couldn't wag without him."

"Maybe so," said Mr. Grunpison, "but after hearing him talk for five minutes you'd realize that he wouldn't be indispensable to a town of only 500 inhabitants."—Huntington Age-Herald.

Burly Wool Results In Big Annual Loss

With the average Kentucky sheep shearing about five pounds of wool, farmers in the State lose about 50 cents on each fleece that is marketed with burs in it, sheep specialists at the College of Agriculture have estimated in pointing out the advantages of removing these before selling the wool. Wool containing burs always is discriminated against by buyers, the price last year for burly wool being approximately two-thirds of that paid for clean wool. Wool worth 30 cents a pound will bring only 20 cents when it contains burs.

In view of the fact that the State produces about 3,000,000 pounds of wool each year, a reduction of ten cents a pound on that containing burs represents a heavy annual loss to farmers of the State which could be avoided, the specialists say.

"On the college farm, we have found that the burs can be clipped out more quickly and easily before the sheep are sheared than they can after the shearing has been done," L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the sheep work said. "Then too, if the grower attempts to clip or pick out the burs after shearing, the fleece is likely to be torn apart so that it will not be in such good market condition."

American Legion News

The Assembly of the State of New York, in legislative session, has passed a resolution endorsing the American Legion's five-fold adjusted compensation measure and urging its passage. Copies of the resolution were sent to New York's members of Congress.

It took a small Jewish girl and a little maid from Italy to win first and second prizes for the best essays on "Our Greatest American." The contest was held by the American Legion at Auburn, N. Y.

Napoleon was right! Fifty cakes, 40 cases of soft drinks, two bushels of peanuts, 20 gallons of ice cream, 4,000 sandwiches, and a crate of oranges were consumed by 900 ex-soldiers (an if friends) at an American Legion housewarming at Hinghamton, N. Y.

"There is only one God, and that God is Allah," yelled a young man at midnight, from the top of a lonely hill in Nashville, Tenn. The police were not placated until American Legion comrades explained that he was being initiated into a Greek letter fraternity.

Galloping from hangars on winged mounts, ex-fliers of the American Legion staged an aerial polo game in a recent carnival at Miami, Fla. Toy balloons were used in place of polo balls.

Capt. Charles Ainsleigh, skipper of a coal barge in 1918, was the only American wounded off the coast by enemy fire. He was hit by a shell from a submarine while his small son stood on deck and waved an American flag. Jobless for almost a year, Ainsleigh, through the American Legion, has landed a position as yachtsman at the State House in Boston, Mass.

This is the time we beat the other fellows to it by predicting a bumper crop this summer.

Optimists continue to predict a revival in business. We hope everybody gets converted.

Yolks + Whites = Eggs

Are You Feeding Enough Whites?

About one out of ten poultry raisers feeds a ration properly balanced for egg production. The common mistake is feeding too much yolk-making material and failing to feed for whites. Grains alone make lots of yolks but few whites.

Purina Chows Balance

Purina Chicken Chowder and Purina Hen Chow, fed in equal parts by weight, balance the whites and yolks by supplying an equal number of each. They make hens lay to the limit of their capacity! Purina Chows save time and trouble—no guess work, no trouble and uncertainty of mixing. Feed both Chows and keep the egg basket full.

EARLY CABBAGES NEED RICH SOIL

Start Seed in Hotbed in February and in Open Ground as Soon as Possible.

CULTURE OF RELATED CROPS

Cauliflower Thrives Best Under Irrigation, and Brussels Sprouts May Be Grown in Same Manner—Collards Are Tender.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When set in the spring, cabbage seed should be started in a hotbed or greenhouse in February and in the open ground as soon as the soil can be worked. For a late crop in the North, plant the seeds in a bed in the open ground in May or June, and transplant in the garden in July. Early cabbages require a rich, warm soil in order that they may mature early. For late cabbages, the soil should be heavier and more retentive of moisture and not so rich as for the early crop, as the heads are liable to burst. Cabbages should be set in rows 30 to 36 inches apart and 14 to 18 inches apart in the row. Early cabbages must be used soon after they have formed solid heads, as they will not keep during hot weather. They can, however, be used for making sauerkraut.

Cauliflower.

Cauliflower requires a rich, moist soil, and thrives best under irrigation. It will not withstand as much frost as cabbage. The culture is the same as for cabbage, and the heads begin to develop, after which the leaves may be tied together over the heads in order to exclude the light and keep the heads white.

Brussels Sprouts.

Brussels sprouts are closely related to cabbage and cauliflower, and may be grown in the same manner. Instead of a single head, brussels sprouts form a large number of small heads in the axils of the leaves. As the heads begin to crowd the leaves should be broken from the stem of the plant, to give them more room. A few leaves should be left at the top of the stem, where the new heads are being formed. Brussels sprouts are more hardy than cabbage, and in mild climates may remain in the open ground all winter, the heads being removed as desired. For winter use in cold localities, take up plants that are well laden with heads and set them close together in a pit, coldframe or cellar, with a little soil around the roots.

The uses of brussels sprouts are similar to those of cabbage, but they are considered of a superior flavor.

Collards.

The culture and uses of collards are the same as for cabbage and kale. Collards withstand the heat better than either cabbage or kale, and a type known as Georgia collards is highly esteemed in the Southern states. Collards do not form a true head, but instead a loose rosette of leaves, which, when blanched, are very tender and of delicate flavor.

A Solid Head of Cabbage.

Kohlrabi.

Kohlrabi belongs to the same class as cabbage and cauliflower, but presents a marked variation from either. The edible portion consists of the swollen stem of the plant. For an early crop, plant and cultivate the same as for early cabbage. For a late crop the seed may be sown in drills where the crop is grown and thinned to about eight inches apart in the row. The rows should be from 18 to 36 inches apart, according to the kind of cultivation employed. The fleshy stems should be used while they are young and quite tender.

PLANTING ONIONS IN GARDEN

Greater Part of Commercial Crop Is Grown From Seeds—Sets May Be Planted Early.

Onions may be grown either from sets or from seed. The greater part of the commercial onion crop is grown from seed, but the usual method of planting onions in the garden is by use of sets. One quart of sets will plant from 75 to 125 feet of row with the plants 4 inches apart in the row; this depends, however, upon the size of the sets. Onion sets should be placed in a small furrow, root-end downward, and covered to a depth of about 1 1/2 inches unless the soil is extremely heavy, in which case they should not be covered so deeply. Onion sets may be planted just as early in the spring as the ground can be cultivated.—United States Department of Agriculture.

VALENTINE TRAIL

By RUBY DOUGLAS

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Oh, I'm so tired of lace paper hearts and Cupids made of chocolate, and boxes of violets that have been taken out of the ice-box! I almost wish there were no such day as Valentine's day."

The girl who made the remark had bobbed hair and a one-piece frock.

"What would you suggest, Jane?" asked her chum. "What is there left?"

Jane did not reply at once. "That's just it: I don't know what I want. All I know is that I don't want a lace paper heart!"

"Perhaps a real human heart, served up on a platter as in ancient barbaric days, would please you more, dear?"

"No—no. I think I just want to find some one original enough to give me something different," Jane explained.

The chum made audible signs of surprise. "Oh, Jane, you are funny, you, trying to get out of the conventional calf path!"

Neither of the girls knew that, as they sat talking thus over their little tabourette and tea table before the big fire in the country club house, a man had been sitting close by constantly reading a sporting paper.

"I think I'll be a sport myself," he concluded quickly. "I like that girl's voice. I like her looks. I think I'd like her philosophy."

Thereupon he set out to find out who she was, where she lived. He then set his brains to work to originate an idea for a valentine.

His mind had created a thought. "It depends on the snowfall, but I'm just sport enough to think that Cupid—though not of chocolate—will implore the gods to see that I have a snowy setting for February 14!"

Jane Hall lived in the community adjoining the country club at which she was having a tea the afternoon that Tom Hayes overheard her petulant remark about St. Valentine and his customs.

"The big idea," Tom decided, "is to let the girl guess who is her Valentine."

On the night of February 13 a wonderful carpet of white snow covered the ground.

Tom, feeling like a cut-throat or second-story operator, stole noiselessly through the virgin snow to the Hall's garden.

He had a garden trowel, a package of large red hearts cut from paper, some red fluid that looked like paint.

Underneath the window of Jane he dug out a heart-shaped hole and placed within it a great red paper heart. Then he walked on through the garden, dropping drops of red in the snow and every few feet adding another heart. The trail wound off down into the woods in the rear of the Hall home and disappeared into space.

"If she's anything of a sport she'll follow this trail, and it leads straight to my heart," he said triumphantly. "I'll make her notice me, anyway," he thought, by way of excusing himself.

When Jane put up her shades to look out at the weather on the morning of St. Valentine's day she rubbed her eyes to see if they told her the truth.

Her heart thumped wildly as she dressed and went out of doors without waking the family. She had put on her rubbers and sport clothes, so she followed the trail of hearts to the woods. At the end she found a note hung to the limb of a tree.

"If you want to find your Valentine play golf in the snow this afternoon. The red golf ball I have placed beneath the last heart in the trail. I'll be waiting for you at the seventh hole, and when I see the red ball driven from the sixth I shall know that you are on your way."

Jane did not know at first what to do. Her conversation with her chum, Grace, at the country club, came to her mind with the natural association of ideas. At first she accused Grace of the idea, and then she knew that Grace would never have had either the energy or the originality to think of it.

"I shall go, anyway," she decided. After lunch she surprised the family by announcing that she was going to the club for a game of golf.

"You're nutty, sis," said her brother. And off she went to the golf course, the red ball hidden in her pocket. She kept her golf clubs in her locker.

Her cheeks were the color of the ball she was playing with when she reached the sixth hole and told her caddy to go on ahead of her.

As she approached the seventh hole across the wonderful white fairway that led to it she saw a man in golf clothes awaiting her. Her excitement almost choked her, her daring somewhat stunned her.

"I'm afraid I'm not as pretty as a lace heart," the man began, extending his hand and himself a little embarrassed as he looked into the beautiful eyes of Jane.

Jane would have blushed if she had not already gathered sufficient color to be becoming. "You—heard my silly conversation?"

He nodded. "Yes—and I know your name and mine is Hayes—Tom Hayes. Please let me be your valentine, Miss Jane."

Jane liked him; she knew she liked him. "All right; you shall begin by being my valentine and—"

"Leave the end to me," he said. "The game's the thing now."

Insect With Spring-Board Nose.

Among the curious insects of the Malay peninsula studied by a member of the London Zoological society is one called the lantern fly, which is remarkable for its sudden leaps, made without the aid of its wings. It was only after the observer had carried a specimen to London and carefully examined it that he discovered that a curious projection on the front of its head, a kind of nose with a crease in it, was the leaping organ. When bent back under the abdomen and suddenly released it sent the insect flying.

High Sign of Art.

"See that picture on the outside of my paint box?" said Gertrude, the student artist. "Well, that's my introduction to any other student who's trying to become famous along the lines of Rosa Bonheur and happens to know about the idea. There's no special picture painted on the box, if you know what I mean, but just something that will let the fellow toilers in oil know the other is striving also to reach artistic heights. In this way many acquaintances are made and a helpful exchange of ideas results. We meet students who know of the idea almost everywhere."

To you who have dreamed of a home of your own the advertisers on this page say: "Build it this Spring; 'Build With the Birds!'"

Not in several years have conditions been so favorable as they are right NOW. The period of building inactivity is passing. Prices of material, cost of labor, etc., are stable. National authorities who have studied the situation declare that in a few months the tide of building activity will have risen to a point that will probably create shortages. There is every reason for building NOW.

Let the responsible business and professional men represented on this page help you to realize your dream of a real home this season. From the selection of the lot to the planning, the material supply, the construction, the decoration, the furnishing, they are equipped fully to give you the utmost in value, service and satisfaction.

"Build With The Birds"

Spring is the time of nesting, and during the coming season hundreds of human families in this community will emulate their feathered friends in building a new home or improving the old one.

For several years there has been a shortage of houses all over the United States. Building, during the war, did not keep pace with the demand for homes, and as a consequence rents rose to unprecedented heights. The high cost of building materials and of labor prevented many from building during the past two years, but this year, with most materials at normal or even below, a period of intensive building can be expected.

Using "Build with the Birds" as a slogan, a number of firms in this community which specialize in building material and home furnishings are joining in a concerted effort to promote an intelligent study of building needs and the best methods of supplying them. The impetus for this movement came from the "Rite-grade" Shingle Manufacturers' Association, an organization of the Pacific Coast mills that cut red cedar shingles, which are inspected and guaranteed as to quality and grade.

Recently this association conducted a nation-wide contest which gave them a remarkable collection of plans of modern houses, which are giving satisfaction and pleasure to owners all over the country. They found that beauty of appearance, convenience and economy were the principal factors considered by people in planning to build a house, and are trying to make information available which will help prospective builders to be able to plan their homes with these factors more clearly in mind. They have reproduced in an attractive booklet the photographs and plans of the prize-winning houses, and copies of this can be obtained without cost.

Such a movement, which will promote the building of more and better houses, will be of distinct benefit to this community, and its success will be reflected for years to come in the attractive and substantial homes which will be "built with the birds" in 1922.

More Work Than Pay

It is doubtful if the average citizen realizes the amount of time devoted to the public welfare by town officials and members of the governing bodies. They can never consider their time their own.

Scarcely a day passes but what some citizen approaches them with some request or suggestion relative to city affairs. Each of these must be carefully considered from all angles, and the good points weighed against the bad ones.

This requires much time and thought, all of which is taken from their private business affairs.

The slight compensation they receive from the town treasury is but a pittance, not to be compared with the value of the time and energy they devote to the public good.

Why, then, do they do these things?

You love and take a pride in the little child in your home, and spend endless hours and days in training it, to the end that it may grow to maturity a credit to itself as well as to you.

Much the same reason actuates the average City Councilman. It is his town, his home, and he wants to see it become a credit to the citizenship of the community.

The hours he spends in bringing about this result are not considered. It is the result itself that counts.

Too bad we can not all be of the official class.

It would be better for the home town.

Making Dollars Work

The evolution from the old time real estate mortgage to the present system of issuing interest bearing bonds when a loan of any size is negotiated marks a distinct milestone in the history of the expansion and development of this country.

Bonds are in themselves mortgages, and possess all of the protecting clauses for investors that are found in the straight real estate mortgage. Generally a bank or a bond house buys up the entire issue of a bond loan and sells it to the public in separate bonds of various denominations. Those of $100, $500 and $1,000 are the most popular.

The possibility of investing a hundred dollars at a time in a bond bearing six or seven per cent interest offers a splendid opportunity to young people to begin life in the right way—by regularly investing their savings in small sums at a profitable rate of interest.

Again, it has a tendency to bring out the hidden wealth of the country from the old stockings and stove pipes and tin cans and put it to work in manufacturing and commercial enterprises that all go toward increasing the prosperity of the country.

But beware how you buy bonds from a stranger. The safe way is to go straight to your local banker and buy from him. He knows the bonds that are safe and those that are best to let alone.

It is his business to know, and his judgment may be relied upon with perfect safety.

Parton

William Parton, who for many years was a resident of Lancaster, died at his late home in Middlesboro, Ky., Tuesday morning. His remains were brought to Lancaster today for interment in the Lancaster cemetery.

Shelton

John Shelton, aged 57 years, was found dead in bed at his home Tuesday morning. He lived near Stringtown and is survived by his wife and three children. Coroner S. H. Anderson was called and an inquest held. It was found that he had been a sufferer from asthma for several months, and that his death was caused by cardiac asthma.

Eubanks

J. C. Eubanks died at his home in Stanford last Thursday after an illness of three years, many months of this time he was compelled to keep his bed. Mr. Eubanks was born in Lincoln county, near Hubble, and was 58 years of age. He is survived by his wife and one daughter and aged mother. About 20 years ago he married Miss Jennie Perkins, of this county. She and the young daughter have the universal sympathy of friends in this county, for their great loss of a devoted husband and father. Two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Miller, of Rochester, Ill., and Mrs. Malissa Underwood, of Louisville, also survive.

He was one of the most prominent business men in Lincoln county and a director in the First National Bank of Stanford.

Funeral services were held at his late home last Saturday morning, interment following in Buffalo cemetery.

Griffin

Mrs. Jennie Griffin, relict of the late James C. Griffin, and formerly a resident of this city, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Young, at Osceola, Ark., last Friday morning of pneumonia, after a week's illness. Before her marriage, she was Miss Jennie Underwood, sister of W. H. Underwood, of Lincoln and Luther Underwood, of Boyle county. She is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. E. B. Bourland, of this city, Mrs. J. C. Young, of Osceola and Mrs. William Myers, of Atlanta. She had many friends in Garrard county who remember her so pleasantly and will be grieved to learn that she is no more. (Our little city and its hospitable people ever held a warm corner in her heart. It was here the best days of her life was spent, and it was, we presume, her desire that beneath the shady trees of our Silent City, surrounded by the beauty, happiness and contentment of our people, where the birds warble their most melodious songs, should be the eternal abiding place of all that was mortal of her. The remains reached Lancaster last Sunday and were taken to the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Bourland, where funeral services were conducted that afternoon, interment following in the Lancaster cemetery. To her devoted daughters the sympathy of the community goes out to them in the loss of a dear mother. We know that years hence the memory of her unselfish devotion, will make them better women and her precepts be their guiding star.

Sowders

The death of Miss Massie Sowders, on March 1st, at her home in Muncie, Ind., came as a surprise and shock to her intimate friends and relatives in this county, where she and her family had lived before moving to their new home. Miss Sowder was 24 years old and a devoted member of the Baptist church. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sowder, who survive her, beside two brothers and three sisters, all now residents of Muncie. The body was brought to Lancaster for interment which took place March 5th, the services being conducted by Rev. W. E. Rex, of the local Baptist church.

Pierce

Curtis Pierce, aged 84 years and probably one of the oldest citizens in Garrard county died suddenly at his home near Teatersville, last Tuesday afternoon about five o'clock. Up until a few weeks ago he had enjoyed good health, but a slight attack of flu from which he had practically recovered, probably hastened the end. He was mingling with his friends in Lancaster a short while ago and at that time his friends were remarking to him how well he bore his eighty-four years. He served his country faithfully and patriotically during the Civil war on the Union side and could entertain his friends by the hour, with his war stories, which he told so vividly and entertainingly. He was a member of the Baptist church. Funeral services will be held at the Buckeye church today at eleven o'clock, where the interment will take place. He is survived by four children, all sons, prominently connected and well-to-do. They are: James Pierce, Danville; Frank Pierce, Louisville; Obe Pierce, of Washington City and Joe Pierce, of this county.

L. W. Brooks Dead

L. W. Brooks, of Bryansville, age thirty-five, another victim of the World's Great War, passed peacefully to rest Saturday afternoon, March 4th, at a Lexington hospital. He had been in declining health since his service over seas, but his condition was not considered serious and his death came as a great shock to his family and host of friends. Those who survive are two brothers, J. L. Brooks, Tampa, Fla., H. G. Brooks, Bryansville, with whom he made his home; six sisters, Mrs. John Wood, Nicholasville, Mrs. Luther Brumfield, Wilmore, Mrs. Olive Doyle, Smithfield, Mrs. B. L. Dockum, Loveland, Ohio, Mrs. C. H. Edens, Lexington, Mrs. J. D. Flowers, Danville. The remains were laid to rest Monday morning in the Nicholasville cemetery, beside his mother and father, who passed on some years ago.

To The Memory Of L. W. Brooks

I first met W. L. Brooks when our country was calling for men to uphold its honor together.

We went to camp and was placed closely together by our association. There grew to be a deep love for each other. I found in him a friend so much appreciated in those dark days. He was a man of deep thought, jovial, but not frivolous, a big heart full of sympathy.

While in camp here his health began to break, but he bore it patiently, and went on over seas and into the trenches, his health growing worse all the while.

When he was discharged after the war was over his health was so broken he never fully recovered. He is a casualty of the war for he brought back the marks in his body that added his name to the list of those that made the supreme sacrifice for our country.

Let us not forget them and the noble sacrifice they made, may we say with the poet:

Rest on embalmed and sainted dead,
Dear as the life you gave,
No impious foot steps shall ever tread
The herbage of thy grave,
Nor shall thy memory be forgotten
While from her record keeps,
And honor points the hallowed spot
Where valor proudly sleeps.

The Rev. Dr. William E. Barton, minister and writer of Oak Park, Ill., who was a recent visitor to Louisville, collaborating with members of the Elson Club in an effort to locate the grave of the grandfather of Abraham Lincoln is an uncle of Mrs. Russell Crumlin, of Lancaster, he having been a brother of her mother, the late Mrs. G. M. Patterson. Dr. Barton has recently published a life of Clara Barton, who was his relative, which has been highly commended by reviewers. Something of the spirit of philanthropy of her kinswoman of Red Cross fame was shared by Mrs. Patterson whose sympathy and liberality to those who knew her. Mrs. Patterson was very proud of her brother's literary success, and visited him a number of times at his home in Oak Park.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lear, of Lexington road, were at home to a few relatives Sunday at a dinner party in celebration of Mr. Lear's sixtieth birthday. The home was decorated in red and white carnations and the table decorations and the menu were also in red and white in so far as was possible. A huge white birthday cake topped by seventy white and red glowing birthday candles formed the center piece, surrounded by red heart ted cakes with seventy red on them. An elaborate dinner of seven courses was served. Mr. Lear is one of the most highly respected citizens in the county and the cake was cut with good wishes for his further happiness and many returns of the day. The following partook of the feast and enjoyed the day to the fullest: Mrs. Beatie Daddler, of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lear and children, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bastin and little daughter, Willie Allene, Jr., and Mrs. B. C. Rose and little son, of Bryansville.

Mrs. William Robinson Cook and Miss Emily Letcher were hosts yesterday at a beautiful reception at the home of Mrs. Cook, on E. Lexington avenue, from three to five. Mrs. Cook and Miss Letcher received the guests in the drawing room, which was made most attractive with baskets of Spring flowers and pots of begonia. The hall and living room had quantities of lenquils that spoke a joyous welcome, and made everyone feel that it was good to be there. The dining table wore a most elegant cloth done in an elaborate fillet pattern and had as a center piece, a basket of Killarney roses. The living room opened into the sun parlor, which had handsome pots of ferns and vines in profusion. Brick and home made cakes were served. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Wyatt Letcher, Mrs. Jas. H. Letcher, Mrs. Robert Quinberry, Mrs. Mary Vincent Fulton, Mrs. Edwin Curry, Miss Mary Hays Letcher, Mrs. Emmet Puryear and Mrs. Ed Allen. Miss Mary Mae Walker, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Turner at Greenwood, Miss., passed through Danville last night on her way to her home in Lancaster. —Prof. Boyd, of the Lancaster High School, was here yesterday enroute to Louisville. —Danville Messenger.

ACCOMPLISHED By Chamber Of Commerce In Past Six Months

It was the men active in this Chamber of Commerce THAT:— Secured routing of Cincinnati- Chattanooga Airline (Dixie Lookout Mountain Route) through Lancaster. Put Garrard County over in the Burley Co-operative Tobacco Association drive.

Assisted in making the Garrard County School Fair and Field Day a success.

Placed road signs on the Garrard County Highways for benefit of all travelers.

Placed three signs in Lancaster for guidance of motorists. Succeeded in having auto bus make two round trips daily between Lancaster and Lexington.

Requested City Council to replace defective fire hose and inspect all hydrants.

Established a Credit Rating Bureau containing names of 1,500 Garrard County parties for benefit of Chamber of Commerce Merchants and Business Men.

Established, through co-operation of the four churches, Women's Club, Red Cross, County and City Authorities, a United Charities record to prevent duplication of activities and eliminate impostors.

Secured the consent of seven of Lancaster's most progressive men to accept nominations for offices on New City Administration, and these were all elected to office on a non-partisan ticket.

Made a survey of the cost for electricity to municipalities throughout Kentucky and submitted the data to the new City Council. The electric light rate was reduced from 18 to 12 1/2 cents per kw.

Secured the promises of the U. S. Tire Co., in New York City that the historical sign in Bryansville at Buena Vista turn would be changed and reading matter such as had been furnished by Lancaster Chamber of Commerce would appear on said sign.

Appointed a special committee to investigate the affairs of the Lancaster Building and Loan Association and to recommend the said organization as a safe and reliable investment for everybody.

Established an Investigating Committee to which all solicitors, canvassers and transient house to house salesmen are referred, in order to determine the merit of their mission and thus dispense with fakers, confidence men and "professional beggars."

Provided the American Legion with temporary headquarters and rendered assistance during activities in the county.

Arranged for the dissolution of Kentucky Area Club and assignment therefrom of sufficient money to make initial payment of several hundred dollars to Cincinnati Lookout Mountain Airline Highway Ass'n.

Assisted merchants in featuring a special Dollar Day Sale.

Advocated changing the fiscal year to March 1st, thus sparing tenants and tax payers considerable inconvenience which exists under present system.

Secured additional compensation for the night watchman thereby making it possible for the city to have police protection during the entire 24 hours.

Prevailed upon Lexington and Knoxville Automobile Clubs to supply direction signs through Garrard county.

Reported to the Legislature that a careful canvass of Lancaster disclosed the fact that practically every merchant supported the Anti Trading Stamp Bill now up for consideration at Frankfort.

Supported the county authorities with reference to their 1922 program for road development and highway maintenance.

Recommended Dr. Virgil Kinnard to the U. S. Veterans Bureau for medical examiner in Garrard county.

Joined with the other Commercial organizations of Kentucky and Tennessee in opposing the efforts of The Alabama Power Co., to interfere with the development of the Muscle Shoals project for legitimate purposes. Committee on Military Affairs, Washington, D. C. advised to this effect.

"Now, these stuffed birds," said the director, "are among the finest specimens in the country. They're worth thousands and thousands of pounds." "You don't say so?" said the profligate, studying the cases; "what are they stuffed with, then?"

Where Plagues Start.

There are four epidemic centers of bubonic plague—that is, localities where the disease is always present and from which seed may be derived for an extensive outbreak in other parts of the world. One of these epidemic centers is in Mesopotamia, two are in the regions of the Himalayas and the fourth is located in Uganda, Africa. The fight against plague is necessarily a fight against rats and their tenants, the fleas.

SKIM MILK HAS BIG FOOD VALUE

Specialists of Department of Agriculture Recommend Its More Liberal Use.

IS LACKING IN BUTTER FAT

Nutritive Part Consists Very Largely of Protein and There Are Many Uses to Which It Can Be Put in Preparing Meals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Skim milk, though often wasted, is a very economical food material. In the opinion of specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture, and could be more generally used, in cooking, as human food.

Whole milk, as everyone knows, is an indispensable food for the young, and even in the diet of the adult it is desirable. For cooking purposes skim

Corn Chowder is an Excellent Way in Which to Utilize Skim Milk.

milk is very satisfactory, although it lacks the valuable food constituent, butterfat. There is left, however, in the skim milk, not only all of the sugar, which amounts to about 4 1/2 parts in every 100 and most of the mineral substances, but also most of the proteins. The last-named class of substances are important, because, besides supplying muscle and tissue-building material, they also serve as fuel for the body, as fats, sugars and starches do.

Rich in Protein.

Since the nutritive part of skim milk consists very largely of protein, it is to be classed with such food materials as eggs, meat, fish, poultry and cheese (though it is more delicate than those foods), rather than with such substances as sugar, which serve only as fuel. Two and a half quarts of skim milk contain almost as much protein and yield about the same amount of energy as a pound of round of beef.

Whole, unskimmed milk has, of course, a more pleasing taste to many people, and those who do not need to consider the additional cost will no doubt always prefer it. Children should always be given whole milk. When used for cooking, however, the difference in taste between skimmed and unskimmed milk is not so perceptible, and there are many uses to which skim milk can be put in the preparation of foods. In the making of cereal mushes, for instance, the use of skim milk in place of water adds greatly to the nutritive value, particularly by raising the amount of tissue-forming materials. In making milk soups, chowders, custards, and cakes also, it can be profitably used.

Corn Chowder.

1 can of corn, or 1 pint of fresh corn, grated.
4 cupsful of potatoes, cut into small pieces.
2 ounces salt pork.
1 small onion, chopped.
4 cupsful of skim milk.
1 teaspoonful salt.
4 ounces crackers.

Cut the pork into small pieces and fry it with the onion until both are a delicate brown. Add the potatoes and corn; cover with water and cook until the vegetables are soft. Add the milk and salt and reheat. It is well to allow the crackers to soak in the milk while the potatoes and corn are being cooked. Some people cook the corn from which the corn has been removed, in water, and later use this water for cooking the potatoes and corn.

Curd Cup Cakes.

1 cupful dry curd.
4 eggs.
4 cupsful sugar.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Beat the yolks of the eggs thoroughly; add the sugar and the curd (which must be very dry), and beat until the mixture is smooth. Combine this mixture by cutting and folding with the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven, in which the heat is greater at the bottom. Use unbuttered gem tins. This amount should make about thirty cakes.

In order to prepare the curd, take two and one-half or three quarts of sour skim milk; heat to the boiling point and strain; when no more liquid runs off, press the curd between cloths or dry it in a warming oven. If the curd from the quantity of milk given amounts to more than a cupful, it is too wet.

If a very sweet cake is liked, as is the case in parts of South America, where these cheese cakes are well known, two cupsful of sugar may be used with two cupsful of the cottage cheese and four eggs.

It should be remembered that skim milk does not contain so much nutrient as whole milk. Its greatest function is to give added food value at low cost when used in cooking to replace water, and is a means of utilizing the skim milk which contains much food.

Incorporated in Kentucky 36 Years Ago

For 36 years the Standard Oil Company (Kentucky) has been identified with the business and economic life of the people of the State of Kentucky.

It was incorporated under the laws of the State of Kentucky in the year 1886.

The Company's home office is located at Louisville, Kentucky. And all its officers and directors, as well as a large part of its stockholders, are citizens of the State of Kentucky.

It operates at Louisville a most modern and efficiently equipped refinery---THE HOME OF NEW CROWN GASOLINE, "The Perfect Motor Fuel."

It operates 150 tank stations and service stations with every modern facility for the greatest possible convenience and service to the public.

It pays more than $1,500,000.00 a year in salaries and commissions to its representatives in the State of Kentucky.

It pays approximately $400,000.00 a year under the various city, state and county license and inspection laws of the State of Kentucky.

It maintains a large force of thoroughly dependable employes, whose cooperation, loyalty and efficiency have contributed largely to the building up and sustaining of its great state-wide service to the public.

Upon the superior quality of its products, its efficient organization and excellent service station and tank station system throughout the state, the Company hopes to merit the public's continued patronage and good will.

Bells Heard Eighteen Miles.

The oral law of the Jews, consisting of many traditions touching the Mosaic law, tells that the ancient Hebrews employed brass bells, which were called Megeruphins. These were used on different occasions by the multitude of temple officers and caused frequently such a noise in the streets of Jerusalem that it was hard to catch the words of a speaker. Their purpose was threefold: To call the priests for service, to summon the Levites to come and sing, and to apprise persons generally that the unclean might be brought to the gate named Nicanor.

Eloquent Speakers Will Plead For The Red Cross March 19th. And 26th.

Preparations for the coming Red Cross Roll Call to be held from March 24th. to March 31st. inclusive are rapidly nearing completion. Speakers will address the pupils of the various schools in the county during the coming week in the interest of the Red Cross. Besides these meetings there will be a Union meeting of the churches in Lancaster at the Christian Church, Sunday evening, March 19th., at which Dr. S. E. Brewster, a noted speaker, will address the congregation on the health of the community and on the work of the Red Cross. A large audience should hear this gifted man as his address will be both interesting and instructive.

Sunday evening, March 26th., at 7:30 P. M., at the Presbyterian church another union meeting of all the churches in Lancaster will be held and for this meeting one of the most eloquent speakers of the State will deliver an address on the Ex-service men and the Red Cross. Every ex-service man in the county should be present to hear this service man talk to them. Mr. W. L. Kilpatrick, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., will interest and enthrall all attending this service.

Next Monday representatives of the American Red Cross will arrive in Lancaster and make their headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, while compiling a complete list of all ex-service men in the county who are entitled to compensation by reason of being disabled. This is a good work and will help many a soldier who is in need and who is unable to earn his living. The Liaison Section of the American Red Cross has already helped many disabled soldiers.

THAT DULL ACHING

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and aching backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Read this statement:

Mrs. V. F. Brickey, Stanford Pike, Lancaster, says: "I took Doan's Kidney Pills when I was suffering with backache and they certainly are fine. I had a dull, nagging ache in the small of my back and mornings when I got up I was so lame across my hips I could hardly get around. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. I believe my kidneys caused my back to hurt. Having heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills I took them and before long I was entirely cured of the trouble. I can certainly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Brickey had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Seasonal Tips

For Gardeners

Since the garden is expected to produce more food than any other piece of ground the same size on the farm, it is essential that it be given the best possible care. Large quantities of well rotted manure worked into the soil before the crops are planted are big helps in making the garden a success.

Planning a campaign system of cropping is a good way to overcome the disadvantage of the limited space usually provided for the garden. Lettuce, radishes, spinach, early beets or early turnips can be grown between the rows of cabbage, tomatoes or cucumbers.

Prevention has more value in the garden perhaps than anywhere else, especially when it is used to control insects, garden specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Some form of spray pump is almost an essential in preventing insect damage and getting the best results from the garden. A small hand pump with the quart jar attached will give satisfactory results under average conditions.

The latter part of March is a good time to put out early cabbage. Jersey Wakefield has proved to be one of the best varieties for Kentucky.

Records show that one year out of every ten the last killing frost in spring occurs after May 1st. in the vicinity of Lexington, after April 21st. in the vicinity of Louisville, after April 25th. in the vicinity of Owensboro and after April 24th. in the vicinity of Paducah. Gardeners can determine the best time to plant vegetables liable to be killed by frost by using this schedule of probable dates after which no more killing frosts will occur.

See PARIS ON PARADE

IF YOU COULD GO TO PARIS, that magic city of fashion, to visit its shops and see the new creations in the hands of the master designers themselves, and as worn by the daring French mannequins, what a wonderful time you would have! And how gladly you would go!

You can experience the thrill of a trip to Paris by coming to Louisville during March 31st to April 8th. for Paris will be transplanted for those days to Louisville, in the most gorgeous Style Show and Exposition ever staged in America.

Louisville's Second Annual STYLE SHOW and EXPOSITION

Here you will find Paris, with its Eiffel Tower, its Arch De Triump, its spraying fountains, its beautiful boulevards, its out of door tables, that are so much a part of Parisian life, and even its charming little flower girls and its gendarmes.

And—best of all—here, too, you will find, in shops and on stage, the very newest of Spring apparel. Fifty professional models, twice daily, will promenade the boulevards of this transplanted Paris, and display the exclusive creations brought here by the exhibiting merchants. In addition, at matinee and evening performances, there will be many special attractions that will make each highly entertaining.

To Direct The 50 Professional Models at Louisville Style Show

MISS JOSEPHINE LEHR

Louisville's 1922 Style Show and Exposition, which will be held in the Armory in that city March 31st to April 5th, promises to be the most elaborate style revue ever held in the South. Miss Lehr, a style model of national reputation from New York city, has been employed by the Style Show board of directors to direct the poses of the fifty professional models who will take part in this important spring fashion event.

"PARIS ON PARADE"

It will be a veritable Paris event in every way. Not only will the smartest Parisian wearing apparel be worn by the fifty professional models imported for that purpose, but the big armory will be transformed to represent that beautiful city of fashion. The shops of the exhibitors will represent fashionable French shops and the decorations will be the most elaborate ever used in Louisville.

There will be a complete change of program daily and many attractive features have been arranged which will be announced later. There will be a seating capacity of 6,500 at each performance.

Failure never bothers the man who doesn't recognize its existence.

HIS AWFUL HEIR

By EDNA BARNES

Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Sylvester Pelam, in the parlance of his fellow-townsmen, was a rich old crab. He surely was rich, even as fortunes are reckoned nowadays; he was old, if one considers three score and 13 as such. As to being a crab—well, it might be said that he walked backward, at least as far as his ideas were concerned.

But everyone has one inconsistency, and old Sylvester's pet hobby was this: he was interested in chirography to the point of its being an obsession. He was forever having to explain to his acquaintances that chirography was not the care of the feet, but a science by which one can read character in handwriting. Let him get hold of a neighbor's writing, and he advertised the poor unfortunate's faults all over the town. Never did he have anything commendable to report.

So far did old Sylvester's hobby possess him that rumor had it that he had willed that his entire estate be used to establish an institute to promulgate the truths of the science (as interpreted by Sylvester Pelam) to the end of dispersing a universal knowledge of chirography.

Now, there was none to dispute this will. His only son was dead—really dead—although to old Sylvester he had been dead from the moment he announced his intention of marrying Edith Melville. She was an actress. Old Sylvester wouldn't even see her. Thus, for 25 years, old Sylvester had heard of his son only twice—once recently when he died and on another occasion when his wife died at the birth of their little son, Melville.

Old Sylvester might have softened toward the child, had he not been branded with his mother's name. He had almost forgotten the existence of "the brat," when out of a clear sky came a letter from the youngster, now aged twenty-one. It was an ordinary enough letter, typewritten on the letterhead of a well-known brokerage concern in New York. Melville was applying for a life insurance policy and he wanted to know what his maternal grandmother died of.

Old Sylvester might not have read the missive but for the signature. Never had he run across such a specimen. It was clear-cut and bold, with just enough slant to denote ambition, but with no trace of unpleasant aggressiveness. So he was interested in life insurance—more prudent than his father, old Sylvester reflected.

Old Sylvester went to the phone. Finally came the report that Melville was not yet in. Old Sylvester retired to brood over the wonderful signature, assured by the operator that he would be summoned as soon as his "party" could be located.

It was nearly 9:30. The "party" was in a tawdry New York boarding house, leisurely attiring himself for the day. He emerged looking like an advertisement for a haberdashery, whistling nonchalantly and feeling quite positive that his lateness this morning would be the last straw. The manager would surely stand for no more. He was a rotten bookkeeper, anyway—he was clever enough to know that. However, he didn't care. Something would turn up. Something always did.

The reason for today's lateness was the usual one—up until all hours the night before dancing with Kathleen, the pearl of all womanhood.

Kathleen talked to Pel-Mel frankly. Let him get a decent income and she would consider matrimony.

Pel-Mel Pelam's conjecture was right; his doom was already sealed when he reached office. The manager was prepared to deal the blow. "Yes, sir," was all Pel-Mel had to say when told his services would be dispensed with. He hardly had a chance to realize he now belonged to the vast army of unemployed when Boston called again.

Pel-Mel emerged from the booth ten minutes later, warm and dazed. The gist of it all was that his grandfather—his mysterious old grandfather of whom his parents had told him almost nothing—was arranging for $100,000 to be placed to his credit in a New York bank that very day. "Don't want you to have to wait till I'm dead to be glad you have a grandfather," Old Sylvester had explained.

A more curious person than Pel-Mel Pelam might have wondered at this sudden interest, but Pel-Mel's mind was occupied only with the jingle of money. Why, $100,000 would buy Kathleen's consent, with some change left over!

Pel-Mel grabbed his hat and started to Kathleen. "Pel-Mel" was the right name for him, thought many a clerk, as he dashed through the office. The accommodating stenographer with the big, serious eyes, sat near the door.

"O, Mr. Pelam," she called to him, and then she gave him a proxy message. Awfully decent of her, of course, thought Pel-Mel, but why stop him, even for a moment? Couldn't she see he was in a hurry? All she had said to him was: "You were gone last night when I finished that letter to your grandfather, so I just signed it myself. I hope you don't mind?"

In All Humility.

"You sometimes discuss subjects you don't understand," remarked the censorious friend.

"Yes," replied Senator Borghum; "but in all humility, I'm perfectly willing to keep the conversation going so that the other fellow will have a chance to explain 'em to me."

Explanatory note:

After two months work, the finance committee of the City Council of the City of Lancaster submit the above report which they believe to be correct to their best knowledge.

We found that no bond book had been kept for years and that only by constant inquiry and advertising could we find these bonds. We expect to keep for public inspection a bond book from this date.

Citizens can see at a glance that we have $6,000.00 in bonds that are past due and unpaid, with not sufficient funds to meet them. Let us have suggestions.

Want to Feel Just Right?

— Take an NR Tonight —

JUST TRY IT AND SEE how much better you feel in the morning. That "lousy" headache, tired, don't-know-what's-the-matter feeling will be gone—you'll feel fine.

TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your overworked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Pills, oils, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and even kidneys, not forcing, but toning and strengthening these organs. The result is prompt relief and real, lasting benefit. Make the test. Nature's Remedy will act promptly, thoroughly, yet so mildly, so gently, that you will think nature herself has come to the rescue and is doing the work.

And oh, what a relief! You'll be surprised to find how much better you feel—brighter, braver, more warlike.

It habitually or voluntarily constipated, take one NR Tablet each night for a week. Then you'll not need to take medicine every day. Just an occasional NR Tablet when that will be sufficient to keep your system in good condition—keep you feeling your best.

FEEDING GARBAGE TO SWINE

When Collected Frequently and Well Selected It Will Make Good Quality of Meat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 10,000,000 pounds of garbage-fed pork is produced annually throughout the United States from the feeding of table scraps and hotel refuse. Heretofore difficulties have been experienced in the economical and satisfactory disposal of city garbage. The United States Department of Agriculture points out that the use of municipal garbage for the production of pork offers a suitable method for disposal of these waste products and has permitted the regulation of our pork supplies at a low cost.

Garbage which is fed to hogs must be collected with reasonable frequency and be free from tin cans, soap, broken glass, and other noxious or injurious foreign materials. It is desirable always for cities to make garbage collections and then dispose of it to individuals, associations, or corporations on a contract basis, unless the city operates its own hog feeding farm.

Longtime contracts are likely to be most satisfactory to all concerned; besides they effect the use of a better class of equipment and better sanitary conditions. The pigs or sows to be fed may be bought as feeders or may be raised on the feeding farm. The latter method gives much more satisfactory results. Methods of feeding, handling, housing, and care may differ considerably so long as the essentials of sanitation and hog comfort are observed.

Equipment for feeding should be adapted to the type of garbage available and to local conditions, climate, and transportation. As a rule, raw garbage is preferable to cooked garbage for the use of hogs. In case the weather should be so cold that the garbage freezes, it is advisable to thaw it before feeding. Generally the use of grain as a supplementary feed for the garbage is not an economical practice, but it must be provided when the supply of garbage is temporarily short.

Hogs which are to be fed garbage should be vaccinated against cholera by the double or simultaneous treatment. Thorough, permanent immunization is very important because of the presence of raw pork scraps from in-fectured hogs which may be put into garbage cans. Garbage-fed hogs show no greater susceptibility to infectious diseases, pneumonia, or kindred diseases than grain-fed animals. Pork from garbage-fed hogs is as good in quality as that resulting from other feeds, and the average garbage-fed hog will at practically the same price as ordinary grain-fed animals.

Self-Feeders for Garbage Are Successfully Used in Some Instances, but Are Not Generally Recommended Because of the Difficulty in Keeping Them Sanitary.

The garbage from more than 3,000,000 people is fed to hogs in cities where municipal supplies of pork are produced from waste food products. If fed under suitable conditions this garbage supply is sufficient to produce approximately 10,000,000 pounds of pork a year. Generally, it takes about 50 pounds of garbage to produce one pound of marketable pork on the hoof.

The garbage should be collected at least two or three times a week in northern cities, while in southern cities daily collection should be made during hot weather.

The equipment for feeding hogs includes self-feeders, troughs, or platform feeders, depending on the kind of garbage fed. Garbage fed on platforms is more readily accessible to the animals. Self-feeders need constant attention to prevent clogging when the garbage contains molasses or corn cobs, or in case it freezes. Troughs are useful for feeding garbage that is semiliquid. In all cases the feeding equipment must be kept clean and sanitary.

Essentials for Hogs.

Plenty of salt always before the hogs is one of the essentials for thrift, also ashes, chemicals, dry soil or other mineral.

Best Breeding Hogs.

Exercise and not too much feed is essential to raising the best breeding hogs. Too much feed makes them overfat.

Breakfast for Hens.

Good warm wheat makes a nice breakfast for the hiddies.

Two Causes Are Cited For Soybean Failures

Failure in growing soybeans for the first time are due largely to the fact that the beans are planted too deep or that they are not inoculated before seeding. Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist at the College of Agriculture is pointing out many Kentucky farmers who will try the crop for the first time this year.

In most Kentucky soils, from one-half to an inch is probably deep enough to cover the seeds. Corn planter attachments for planting soybeans take care of most of this trouble by dropping the bean seed through a separate opening and allowing part of the soil to fall on the corn before the bean drops.

Although soybeans grow well on good soils without inoculation, they take all the nitrogen which they require for growth from the soil when grown under these conditions. On the other hand, most Kentucky soils are of medium fertility and consequently inoculation is necessary for best growth. For this purpose, soil from the top four inches of a field that grew inoculated beans last year will be satisfactory. A quart of soil will inoculate a bushel of beans.

The soil for inoculating may be gathered now and placed in a corner of the barn until time for seeding. In inoculating the beans, a bushel of them is placed in a box or tub and slightly moistened with water after which the powdered soil is sifted over them, care being taken to see that all seeds have some soil on them. They should be planted immediately after treating.

Farm And Home News From Over Kentucky

In order to help farm boys and girls of Allen County get started in the production of purebred animals, leading banks in the county will finance the purchasing of pigs for members of the Junior Agricultural Club there, a report from County Agent A. M. Allen states.

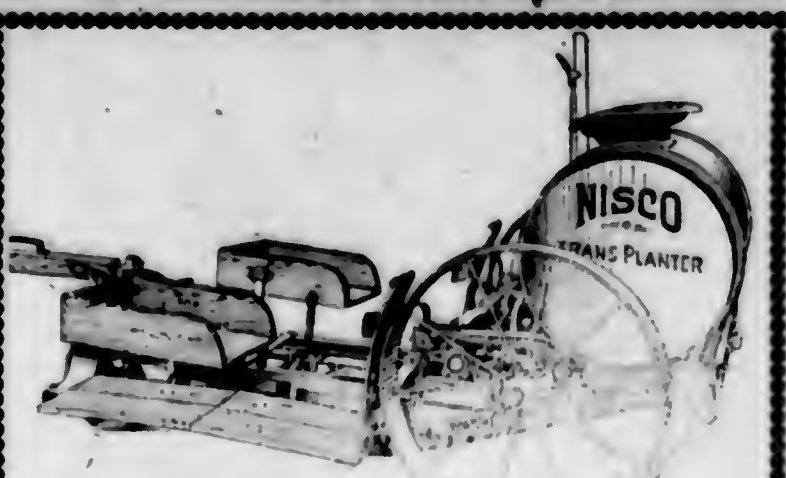

As a result of the winter egg laying project being conducted over the State by the College of Agriculture extension division, many Livingston County farmers are learning better methods of obtaining higher egg production from their hens. County Agent L. C. Pace reports. Chief interest is centered around the leading flocks in the county, which as a general rule are the ones that are receiving a balanced ration, are well housed and that have been culled to remove the culls. The report states.

Owners of purebred White Wyandotte flocks in Webster County are distributing purebred hatching eggs to their neighbors in order to further the plans to make this breed the standard for the county. County Agent Lloyd E. Culter reports. Members of the Junior Agricultural clubs in the county, who are raising poultry as their project, also will obtain eggs from the same source.

With a total of 198 farm boys and girls enrolled in Junior Agricultural clubs, this work is continuing to develop in Lewis County, according to a report of County Agent R. O. Hite. Club schools which are held every ten days and which deal with some agricultural or home subject are the latest development in interesting the farm youngsters.

Calloway Farmers

Plan For Orchard Improvement

Interest among Calloway county farmers in the better care and management of their fruit trees has experienced considerable increase this spring over that shown last year. County Agent J. B. Gardner, has reported to the College of Agriculture extension division. Eleven demonstrations have been held in different parts of the county to show farmers the best methods of pruning and spraying their trees while 12 farmers have ordered spray pumps.

Incidentally, if you keep a stiff upper lip it won't interfere with the lower one.

See Pruning Methods

As the result of a number of pruning demonstrations held in different parts of the county by County Agent R. B. Rankin, many Morgan County farmers have been taught how to clean up their orchards as the first step in increasing their productivity, according to a report. A total of 35 demonstrations held in the county were attended by approximately 400 farmers.

ARE YOUR CHILDREN EXTRAVAGANT?

To allow a child to become extravagant, no matter how well-off the parents may be, is to seriously interfere with the development of its character.

Extravagance breeds ill-health and a lack of appreciation of values. A pampered and over-indulged child can never really experience those joys and pleasures that are the birthright of childhood.

Camel Going Without Water.

An ordinary camel will carry its pack 25 miles a day for three days without water, while there are some that will go without water 50 miles a day for five days. A specially trained camel will carry a rider a hundred miles in a day. It lifts the legs on the same side at the same time, like a pacing horse. A mature camel will carry a load of a thousand pounds. The animal is not full grown until its sixteenth or seventeenth year.

Suppose the majority of men today were rich in his place and putting forth his best effort to do his duty—what would happen? Just this: there would be many strange lines of conduct, no doubt, but no one can question that this would be a better world.

Greek and Roman Churches.

The Greek church differs from the doctrine that the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and Son, reflects the papal claim to supremacy, and administers the eucharist in both kinds to the laity; it agrees with the Roman church in the belief of seven sacraments, transubstantiation, the adoration of the host, confession, absolution, penance, prayers for the dead, etc. The Greek church formally separated from the Roman church in 1504.

"A penny for your thoughts, fair lady," Jack Leonard peered over the top of his newspaper at Celia, who was sitting with her coffee spoon.

"Oh, Jack," she burst out. "I must have looked such a frump last night in that old white crepe! I know I spotted every chance you had."

"Aw, Celia, don't talk that way," Jack's voice was filled with tender reproach. "My chances were pretty slim anyway, and as for your spotting them, I guess not. I didn't care about the job on my own account at all," he had calmly said. "But I don't want my wife always to be obliged to wear made-over gowns."

"As if it mattered!" It was Celia's turn to be consoling now. "But—oh, Jack, wasn't Mrs. Fairchild just dear last night? I love those little gray curls over her ears. See's like the grandmothers one reads about, but seldom sees."

"Yes, she was great!" Jack nodded absently. "But, do you know, Fairchild never mentioned that manager-ship. I thought sure he wanted to dismiss it when he asked us up for dinner. Of course Manly has been on the road longer than I was. I suppose he's better entitled to it." He arose and went into the hall.

"Jack, dear," Celia's voice followed him, "don't you think it would be a rather nice thing to do to send Mrs.
Fairchild some flowers today? I'd like her to know that we appreciated last night."

Jack frowned inwardly as he thought of the lone $30 bill reposing in his bill fold. But he acquiesced cheerfully enough. "To be sure, I'll send them when I go out for lunch."

At lunch time, remembering his promise to Celia, he went into a nearby florist's. A cluster of roses, so yellow that they were almost orange, met his eye. Celia's favorite! Just the thing.

On his way out, a glass case filled with wood anemones entwined with sprays of green arrested his gaze. His love!

"Only 50 cents a bunch!" The clerk was at his elbow. "Just in from the country this morning."

Jack did not hesitate. "Send a bunch to this address," giving him Celia's address.

He did not think of the flowers again until he was nearing home that night.
He wondered if Celia would be pleased. Celia was.

No sooner had he entered the door
than her arms were around his neck in a bear-like hug. "Oh, Jack, you darling! To think you remembered my birthday when I'd forgotten it myself.
And those lovely, lovely roses!"

"Roses?" Jack gasped. It couldn't be!
But, yes, there they were in a crystal bowl. What would the Fairchilds think of that miserable little bunch of wild flowers?

In her ecstasy Celia did not notice his consternation, and with effort on Jack's part they spent a gay evening as befit the occasion.

Mr. Fairchild nodded cheerfully as he passed Jack's desk in the outer office next morning. "Come inside in about half an hour, will you?"

The hands of the office clock pointed to 9:30 as Jack laggingly complied with the request.

"Well, Leonard, I congratulate you!" Mr. Fairchild rose and grasped Jack's hand. "Sit down now and we'll talk the thing over a bit."

In a daze Jack did as he was bid.
"Now, young man," Mr. Fairchild's voice took on a confidential tone. "I'm going to be frank with you. Of course, you know that I've been considering you and Manly both for general manager of the sales department. I don't mind telling you that the odds were mostly in Manly's favor. You are a bit young, you know, and somewhat lacking in experience. However—"

A whimsical expression passed over his face. "I've had orders from higher up that little bunch of wood anemones turned the trick. I found Bessie crying over them when I got home last night—there was a suspicious moisture in his own eyes. You couldn't know, but they were her favorite flowers when we were never minded."

"The upshot of it is this," she insists that a man of such keen perceptions and thoughtfulness is just the man for that vacant position. And another thing. Your wife needs a great bit with her. Shake again, boy! I can guarantee you. Any more suggestions you can make and tell Mrs. Leonard the good news. And say you needn't report for your new job until next Monday."

In a daze Jack left the office.
"The exchange value of anemones and yellow roses," he was thinking.
"Is just about equal in this case. I should say."

A Liberal Education

Next to the study of language, the study of good literature should be taught. To read good books is the best way to read them not always with that etymological thoroughness which Mr. Haskin enjoins, but slowly and carefully getting the full force of every sentence, and the full significance and beauty of every figure and illustration—this is a great aid in mastering the art of expression. In such reading one becomes familiar with the action of the strongest and brightest minds; with the choicest and most telling forms of utterance; and this familiarity is itself a liberal education.—Washington Gladden.

"True Blue" and the "Blue Ribbon."
The expression true blue is handed down from the Scotch Covenanters of the Seventeenth century, who chose blue as their emblem in opposition to the royal red. The Covenanters were a group bound by a series of covenants to uphold the Presbyterian forms and doctrines of faith. Thus true blue was applied originally to a Scotch Presbyterian. The blue ribbon, always the reward of the winner in a race or contest, originated in the use of a blue ribbon as the distinguishing badge of the knights of the tower, an order founded by Edward III.

Notice.

To The Citizens of Garrard County:

A great deal of complaint is coming to me as your County Judge that owners of live stock in some localities are permitting it to run at large to the annoyance of the public and in violation of law. Some have asked for legal steps to prevent it. It appearing to me that many good citizens who want to observe the law do not understand their duty in this matter. I, therefore, give this notice.

All the territories in Garrard County except districts No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, of Garrard County, have heretofore voted in favor of the stock law and the law is in effect; therefore, in these three districts which is all of Garrard County except district No.
4. Any person who wilfully or by neglect suffers cattle, sheep, hogs, or any other live stock to run at large are subject to a fine. Under the law any livestock of any person which goes out of any person's enclosure in any way and damages another person the owner of such livestock is subject to damages to the extent of any injury done. I, therefore, urge all persons owning livestock in Garrard County in these three districts to observe this law and keep livestock enclosed, which will avoid much vexatious litigation.

In the future this law will be enforced.
This March 15th, 1922.
G. M. Treadway, County
Judge of Garrard County, Ky.

BURLEY TOBACCO GROWERS CO-OPERATIVE

JOHN M. FARRA, Manager, Leaf Dept., Lancaster.

If a person were to wash only one side of his face and continually neglect the other side he would soon become a local curiosity—would he be considered dippy.

Yet many of us, cleanly throughout in our personal habits, allow the beauty of well kept front yards to become marred by an accumulation of trash along the back fence.

Dirty and filthy alleys and side streets are an eyesore to any community.

They are not only a detriment to property interests, but are a continual menace to health.

There is not a thing to be said in their behalf, but much to be said against them.

Why have them in this town?

A few years ago farmers tightened their grasp on the lines of their teams and cast hostile glances at passing automobiles.

A few of them spilled tack
in the roads for cars to run over.

Most of them contented themselves with cursing the motorists after getting their teams under control or picking themselves up out of a ditch.

But Mr. Farmer has graduated from that class.

He is no longer hostile to automobiles.

He drives one of his own.

He is death on the culprit who throws a nail or a tack onto the highway.

Even his horse declines to take fright or become skittish.
Times have changed.

So have we.

Whether you be a republican or a democrat, or a mugwump, you probably noticed the statement from Washington to the effect that Mr. Wilson declines to comment on the work of his successor in the white house.

In this instance Mr. Wilson displays wisdom, and good sense.

He made mistakes while in office, as all other presidents have made theirs, and as Mr.
Harding will make his.

We are all human enough to err in judgment, but one of the greatest of all follies is to stand aloof and criticize the one who succeeds us in office.

It is not an American trait.

Periodically some woman opens the eyes of the men around her oftentimes to their discomfort.

A 23 year old girl was recently elected mayor of an Ohio city of 7,000 population.

The underworld considered it a joke, and prepared for carnival of crime.

But the young mayoress appointed herself police chief, magistrate, and the whole works. Being a graduate physician, she even became health commissioner.

Then she quietly went to work, and the criminal element soon found itself pinched, and jailed, and fined without mercy.

They tried threats, and bribes, and every other method known to criminality, but without result, except to make more relentless their prosecution.

It was too much of a bad thing, and the law breakers silently faded away.

Now the city has no underworld—is as clean as a whistle—and the little lady may-oress has a national reputation and thousands of offers of marriage.

The chronic grouch may be without friends, but everybody knows him.

It is contended that loveless marriages no longer exist. If it is not the man or woman who attracts, there is always money, ambition or some other magnet to draw.
